

From work experience to senior leader

Daniel faced years of rejection after graduating from engineering. Eventually, he was able to obtain some work experience.

On his first day of work experience the CEO personally greeted him and set him up to succeed at work.

After only a month of work experience, Daniel got pneumonia. But the CEO stayed in touch, checking on his recovery.

Then, a few months later, a call: "We have an opening. Want to interview?"

Daniel obtained a job at this engineering firm and thrived, working his way up and then becoming a senior leader.

